Breakfast and breakout session information

Breakfast Sessions: 8.00am – 9.00am

Achieving Value from Integrated Care

If integration was easy we would all have done it by now... Join us for an interactive session where we will explore the pitfalls and lessons learned from systems on the journey to integration, the learning from international and UK systems who have made the most progress and the key components required to deliver effectively. We don't have all the answers and there is no one size fits all model - but there is a lot to be learned from systems - including your own - that are on the journey. We look forward to seeing you and sharing thoughts over breakfast.

The Role and Quality of Health Reporting

Chair: Niall Dickson CBE, Chief Executive, NHS Confederation
Speakers: Owain Clarke, BBC Wales Health Correspondent
James Crichton-Smith, Health Reporter ITV Wales

Health organisations and the media have an almost symbiotic relationship. The public are rightly concerned with the performance and quality of service the health and social care sector provides. Equally the media can be a useful tool for organisations to issue warnings and advice which protect public health. In recent years there has also been a surge in health advice coming from less traditional channels online and many of us see advice from a variety of sources every day. We ask the question, whether traditional health reporting still has a place within this modern landscape and whether the public actually care about the quality of the information they are being given.
The Good, the Bad and the Ugly

The Association of the British Pharmaceutical Industry (ABPI) Cymru Wales’ members, their partners from across NHS Wales and other stakeholders will come together to talk frankly about their strategic collaborations and the challenging path taken from inception to delivery. Strong partnerships between NHS Wales and the pharmaceutical industry that are built on joint goals and trust are among the best ways to improve outcomes for patients, now and in the future. The type of new, collaborative ventures outlined in this session will help to drive innovation in medicine and care across the NHS, as well as aligning to the Welsh Government's ten-year plan A Healthier Wales and 'open for business' commitments.

The Wellbeing Ripple Effect

To consider the impact of Neyber’s wellbeing research on individuals, organisations and the community, together with the importance of collaboration and appropriate support for senior leaders. Interactive session, visualising the wellbeing Utopia of the future, having achieved the perfect scenario of what that looks like and how it was achieved and the challenges along the way.

Healthy Wirral: Seamless, integrated health and care. Our journey so far……

Across the River Dee, Wirral's peninsula with a population of approximately 320,000 encompasses areas of affluence along with deprivation and significant disease prevalence. The Healthy Wirral Digital Programme, including both commissioners and providers, have been developing an integrated IT solution to support the delivery of health and social care across the local health economy. This system is an enabler, supporting acute health care delivery through the use of EPR, whilst also permitting optimisation of chronic disease management and risk stratification with resulting improved patient outcomes. Now, Wirral, including an acute NHS Global Digital Exemplar (GDE) site, is at the forefront of IT developments, being the first system outside of the USA to pilot these platforms, known locally as the Wirral Care Record. These developments in interoperability have and will continue to help improve the seamless delivery of care. The cross-organisational exchange of patient data between Primary, Secondary and Community care will ensure that patients receive the most appropriate management for their health and social care needs and reduce duplication. A widely used Health Information Exchange allows the sharing of patient data across providers to support patient management in real time, thus avoiding duplication and ensuring a seamless journey for our patients. Our message is that “patients should have to tell their story only once”. Furthermore, the potential intelligence obtained from the registries which are being developed to support chronic disease areas, will help to tackle health inequalities and support Population Health Management. Join two speakers from Wirral Partners as they share their journey, the challenges and successes, and the impact that this shift is having on health and care in the region.
Accelerate: Putting the Pedal to the Metal on health and care

With the combined expertise of Life Sciences Hub Wales, Cardiff University, Swansea University and the University of Wales Trinity Saint David, Accelerate is a pioneering collaboration that creates a sustainable pipeline of innovative products, services and technologies across health, care and life sciences.

Accelerate aims to speed-up the adoption of innovative technological solutions, products and services into the health and care sector in Wales for sustainable economic benefit. A dynamic, engaging programme, we are here to support opportunities to flourish and grow, guiding and navigating innovators, helping them to build an early idea to become a robust business model. We provide bespoke support and apply it to each individual innovative solution, giving each solution the best possible opportunity for success. Today’s workshop aims to showcase Accelerate, presenting how innovators can be supported through the programme. We would be delighted if you could join us.

Homes: A foundation for wellbeing

Badly maintained homes can have a negative effect on those living in them and the effect of damp/mould on health is well evidenced. Poorly lit properties can increase the risk of a trip or a fall and overcrowded homes can impact mental health. Lack of adaptable housing continues to impact our communities, as well as the shortage of suitable new homes for those in need.

Hear Community Housing Cymru spotlight the importance of housing as a key partner in building healthier communities, while Housing Learning and Information Network, along with Vale of Glamorgan social services, will discuss practical examples and tools to help develop regional and local housing strategies for the longer term.
