On an average day in NHS Wales...

Over 91,000 people are employed, including doctors, nurses, ambulance staff, midwives, health care assistants, allied health professionals and scientific, therapeutic and technical staff.

Over 9,000 web visits and enquiries are made to NHS Direct Wales.

Over 46,000 people contact their GP.

Over 800 calls are made to NHS Direct Wales.

Nearly 2,750 people go to an Emergency Department.

Over 800 calls are made to NHS Direct Wales.

Over 350 whole blood collections are taken.

Nearly 220,000 prescriptions are issued.

Nearly 8,600 outpatient appointments.

Nearly 2,400 people are discharged from hospital.

Nearly 9,500 people occupy NHS beds.

There are 150 radiotherapy attendances at Velindre Cancer Centre.

There are over 8,600 outpatient appointments.

The Welsh Ambulance Service receive more than 1,250 calls.

Nearly 9,500 people occupy NHS beds.

Over 46,000 people contact their GP.

Over 91,000 people are employed, including doctors, nurses, ambulance staff, midwives, health care assistants, allied health professionals and scientific, therapeutic and technical staff.

Over 9,000 web visits and enquiries are made to NHS Direct Wales.

Over 800 calls are made to NHS Direct Wales.

Nearly 2,750 people go to an Emergency Department.

Over 350 whole blood collections are taken.

Nearly 220,000 prescriptions are issued.

Nearly 8,600 outpatient appointments.

Nearly 2,400 people are discharged from hospital.

Nearly 9,500 people occupy NHS beds.

There are 150 radiotherapy attendances at Velindre Cancer Centre.

NHS Wales delivers services through seven Local Health Boards and three NHS Trusts.

Health Boards are responsible for planning and securing the delivery of primary, community and secondary care services alongside specialist services for their areas. These services include dental, optical, pharmacy and mental health services.

There are three NHS Trusts in Wales with an all-Wales focus:
- Public Health Wales NHS Trust provides professional, independent public health advice and services
- Velindre NHS Trust provides a range of specialist services, including the Welsh Blood Service and Velindre Cancer Centre
- The Welsh Ambulance Service NHS Trust provides pre-hospital emergency care and treatment throughout Wales.

For further information, please contact the Welsh NHS Confederation.