Ten ways we've made an impact

The NHS Confederation is the only membership body that brings together, supports and speaks for the whole healthcare system in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. We promote collaboration and partnership working as the key to improving population health, delivering high-quality care and reducing health inequalities.

The last 12 months have stretched the health and care system to its limit. Throughout the year, we have focused on supporting you to respond to immediate challenges and to look ahead to the next phase. We have been your voice in public and your advocate behind the scenes, lobbying for the changes you have requested.

Here are just some of the ways we have supported you this year.

The NHS Confederation is one of the consistently positive voices, defending and explaining the health service when it's difficult for individual organisations to do that without looking defensive.

Dr Lesley Stevens

Director of Community Services, Mental Health and Learning Disabilities, Isle of Wight NHS Trust

01 COVID-19 response

From PPE and test and trace, to the roll out of the vaccine (particularly in primary care) and the easing of regulatory burdens, we have been one of the most prominent voices making the case for the issues that mattered most to you.

02 NHS Reset campaign

We launched the NHS Reset campaign to help shape what the health and care system should look like in the aftermath of the pandemic. Among our successes, we helped secure a commitment for a leaner and lighter approach to governance and regulation. We are launching an update to the campaign in March to focus on what needs to happen in the recovery phase.

03 Health inequalities

Our BME Leadership Network campaigned for action on the disproportionate impact of COVID-19 on people from BME backgrounds, successfully lobbying government for ethnicity to be recorded on death certificates. Our new NHS Race and Health Observatory immediately started work to understand the barriers to take up of the vaccine among BME staff.

04 Extra NHS funding

We worked with the Health Foundation to make the case for additional funding to respond to the impact of the pandemic and to 'fill in the gaps' in the 2018 funding settlement. The Chancellor awarded £3 billion in the Spending Review – more than was expected but less than was needed.

05 System working

This has been at the heart of our work and we have engaged with leaders across the system to support the transition to every area becoming part of an ICS from April 2021. We have published three major reports and are influencing NHS England and NHS Improvement's proposals on next steps.

06 Brexit

We are a leading voice in the health sector on Brexit and run the influential Brexit Health Alliance and the Cavendish Coalition. The UK-EU trade and cooperation agreement met many of the provisions we have campaigned for on behalf of our members and the sector.

07 Support for social care

For the past 18 months we have led Health for Care, a coalition of health organisations that has been increasing pressure on the government to boost funding and support for social care.

08 Workforce

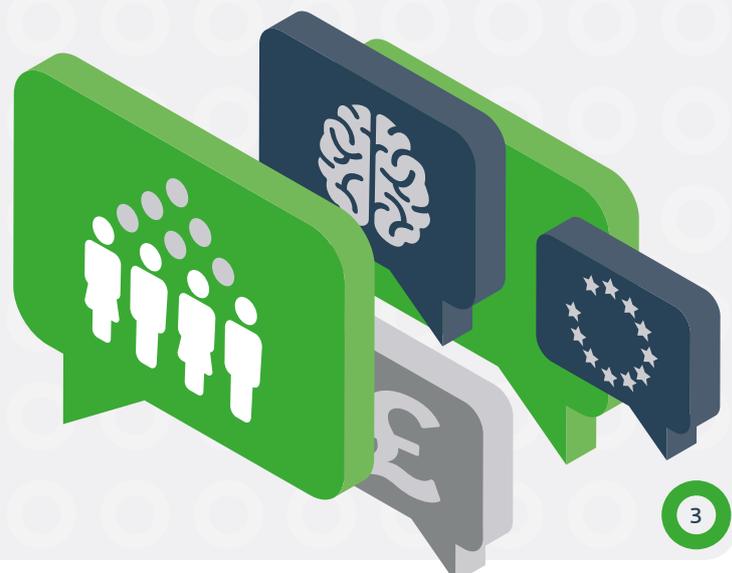

Through NHS Employers, we have provided support and guidance to workforce leaders throughout the pandemic, supplying information and advice on a range of issues, including shielding and testing, pre-employment checks and life assurance, and staff deployment and wellbeing.

09 Mental health

Our Mental Health Network played a key role in highlighting the additional demands on services due to the pandemic, helping to secure an extra £500 million for mental health as part of the Spending Review.

10 Membership for the whole system

We achieved our goal of launching new networks for our PCN and ICS members. Each network meets regularly and we are increasingly acting as the voice of PCN and ICS leaders, providing them with opportunities to influence and raise their profile on key issues.

Working on your behalf

The last year has been incredibly challenging for providers of community health services. We have been here to support you.

As a member, you have been able to benefit from our suite of NHS Confederation-wide resources as well as bespoke support, delivered primarily through the Community Network, which we host together with NHS Providers.

In 2020/21 we have represented you, kept you connected and supported you in a number of ways.

Represented

- Our Community Network wrote to the Secretaries of State for health and social care and communities and local government over the disruptive retendering of local authority public health contracts and Agenda for Change funding for local authority staff working on NHS contracts.
- Our Community Network lobbied for funding to support discharge to assess, both publicly and privately. We submitted representations to both the autumn Spending Review and this spring's Budget.
- Worked with national stakeholders such as Social Enterprise UK to ensure that non-NHS community providers are also represented in national policy discussions.

Connected

- Published a briefing on working with primary care networks and a number of case studies with examples of good practice of integrated, neighbourhood-level working.
- Hosted member events, including on digital tools and on the third phase of the pandemic response.

Supported

- Worked with NHS England and NHS Improvement on a webinar and blog series on urgent community response.
- Supported community providers through our regional team, based in each of the seven NHS regions.
- Hosted roundtables and member events on issues such as the phase three guidance.
- Made the case for the vital role community health services are playing, including in opinion pieces by Community Network chair, Andrew Ridley.

Support for leaders

The NHS Confederation's programme of peer learning and support for first-time provider chief executives continued this year, generating a report on learnings from the first wave, and contributing to the creation of NHS England and NHS Improvement's executive suite.

Our successful Health and Care Women Leaders Network published Action for Equality: The Time is Now, which provided renewed impetus for greater gender representation and diversity on NHS boards. The network also commissioned a survey to better understand the impact of the pandemic on women working across health and care services.

The BME Leadership Network has been a vital source of support for BME leaders throughout the pandemic and a leading voice on combatting inequalities. In December, it published a major report on the underlying factors behind the disproportionate impact of the pandemic on BME communities and outlined necessary action to mitigate risks.

We launched the Health and Care LGBTQ+ Leaders Network, which aims to increase the numbers and visibility of LGBTQ+ people on boards and in senior leadership and to improve the experience of LGBTQ+ staff and patients. The network celebrated National Coming Out Day by publishing a compilation of coming-out stories from some of our LGBTQ+ leaders.

In November, all three networks hosted a festival of learning, wellbeing and inclusion, attended by over 170 delegates and featuring speakers including former Australian Prime Minister Julia Gillard. One hundred per cent of delegates who provided feedback said they would recommend the event to a colleague and felt it was good value for money.
